

19th Century UK Periodicals

Series 2: Empire

Following on from the success of Series 1 which focussed on the emergence of new readerships within Britain, Series 2: Empire: Travel and Anthropology, Economics, Missionary & Colonial turns its attention to the role Britain played beyond its borders as an imperial power throughout the nineteenth century. Complete runs of 91 periodicals chart a century in which Britain extended its influence, reaching new heights of empire building. Sourced from the British Library, the National Library of Scotland and, for the very first time, from the National Library of South Africa and the National Library of Australia, the collection contains periodicals from as far afield as Australia, Canada, Ceylon, India, New Zealand and South Africa.

With over 1 million fully text searchable pages, Empire is a collection of unparalleled depth, range and diversity providing a remarkable insight into how the British perceived themselves and those they colonised - both at home and abroad. Users can search for articles on the abolition of the slave trade within the British Empire in 1807, read about reports of the first Opium Wars (1839-42), measure the Indian response to Queen Victoria's assumption of the title of Empress of India in 1876, and follow European powers' "scramble for Africa" in the 1880s and 1890s.

Many of the periodicals in this collection have never been reissued in any medium since their original publication and in some instances only a single copy of an issue survives. 19th Century UK Periodicals sets a new benchmark in Gale's digitisation of historical newspapers: it is one of the first to feature full colour images of periodicals originally published in colour, including paintings, maps, original illustrations, cartoons, and drawings.

The range of titles were carefully selected by a team of more than 20 editors, headed by Professor Joanne Shattock at the University of Leicester. All the editors are specialists in the field of nineteenth century studies, and majority work in major academic institutions in the UK, including University College London, Cambridge University and Royal Holloway.

Periodicals were chosen to fully reflect the range of interests and preoccupations of Imperial Britain - from travel, literature, anthropology, social reform, philanthropy, politics, economics and science. This is a truly interdisciplinary archive, with journalism covering every aspect of life in the Empire, making it an invaluable resource for researchers and students of nineteenth-century literature and culture, religion, empire, feminism, the arts, sport and leisure, science and medicine and the professions.

Benefits:

- Access to the Waterloo Directory of English Newspapers and Periodicals in the About this Publication detailing periodicals' prices, publishers, editors, printers, circulation, size and more
- Chronology
- Bibliography specific to Empire
- Essays by well respected scholars including Máire ní Fhlathúin from the University of Nottingham and Robert Burroughs from Nottingham Trent University

For more information contact emea.enquiries@cengage.com or visit www.gale.cengage.co.uk/ukperiodicals