Australia's hat-trick, Proteas' redemption
AUSTRALIA Five weeks ago, they were the world's best one-day side. Then they lost five in a row and were displaced at the top of the rankings by South Africa. Fast bowler Brett Lee is out injured and the attack looks decidedly hittable. Doubts over all-rounder Andrew Symonds place a big burden on Shane Watson. But the batting is very strong, and so is the desire to win a third World Cup in a row. Seeding: A1. Odds: 9-4 favourites.		SOUTH AFRICA The Proteas pride themselves in being a team rather than relying on star players, and are desperate to make up for an early exit on home soil last time as well as purge a reputation for "choking". They will dazzle in the field under the guidance of Jonty Rhodes. There is huge experience, the bowling is strong with Andre Nel coming on, the batting is deep. It's time AB de Villiers came good. Seeding: A2. Odds: 4-1.
SCOTLAND Dougie Brown, capped 22 times by England, finally plays in a World Cup for his native country at 37. Scotland also took part in 2003, before he returned. Another ex-England all-rounder, Gavin Hamilton, is there too. Zimbabwe-born Ryan Watson hit 80 against Pakistan on debut and 91 as the Scots won the ICC Trophy final in 2005. They play in the Pro40 and the C&G Trophy. Unseeded. Odds: 1,000-1.	Watson: may have to bear a heavy burden for Australia GETTY IMAGES	HOLLAND The Dutch appear in their third straight World Cup but only sneaked in after a fifth-place play-off in the ICC Trophy. All-rounder Ryan ten Doeschate, born in South Africa, is a big success at Essex in one-dayers and hit four centuries in a row for his country last year. Alexei Kervezee, 17, impressed at Worcestershire with the bat. The team should have benefited from their C&G Trophy exposure. Unseeded. Odds: 1,000-1.

FROM LLOYD'S LEGENDS TO PONTING'S INVINCIBLES

The 10th World Cup begins this weekend, and it's changed enormously since the first tournament in 1975. David Lloyd charts the highs and lows of the game's biggest event

Hosts England
Winners West Indies

90 covers (Dennis Austin 107, an increasingly expensive annual Lord's event) can be made in an attempt to reach their target. Opener Stuart Gooch was 30 not out when his team 0-1 at the 157-2.

The final, though, did not come until 1999. What had, over the years, become a fixture, made 59 on the back of Lloyd's century. It was made to high, and he was the first to run victory. "The game has never produced better entertainment in cricket," reported Wisden.

How we agonisingly threw away the greatest World Cup match of all time

1999 for the closing 20 minutes and leaving a narrow margin. It had been down to the last over. In a tense end, new batsman left and three players in the space of 10 minutes, all of them from the same team, had run out of the field.

By way of comparison, the year's prize, set at a stand at more than £100 million, is 25 times more than the prize money for the 1975 World Cup. It was a triumph for the sport, but a disaster for the players.

Some serious, professional, professional
